Dear Professor Marks:

Yesterday your box arrived safely, with its delightful woody contents. Many, many thanks for the kind remembrance.

Mrs. Boyer, who lives with me, is wiser about flowers than I am. She told me that another name for these moccasin flowers is the duck flower, and showed me how, held in a certain position, the flower has the form of a duck.

My cousin is seriously ill - too ill to receive or understand your words of remembrance. I write sitting by her bed. Please remember me kindly to Dr. Woolley.

I remain always
your affectionate admirer,
Miss Anne Blackwell,
